"Confusion" held the center of the stage at the chautauqua Tuesday afternoon when the Clifton Mallory Players came on for their second play of the series here. This play is a comedy and was well-played.

The Mallorys have made Richmond a regular stop on their itinerary each summer for they have been coming to appear before Richmond audiences year after year. They arrived late Monday and were unable to put on their afternoon performance.

Preceding the Mallorys came a delightful play by the Visocchi Trio who so delighted chautauqua-goers with their fine programs Monday. Their ensemble numbers were the real backbone of their program, but the occasional deviations into solo work were welcomed by the music lovers who heard them.

Wealth Has Place.

"Jesus did not deny wealth but he emphasized the place of wealth in the moral and spiritual development," said Rev. Charles W. Whitman, who lectured before the Bible hour at the chautauqua Tuesday morning. His lecture was on the subject, "Jesus' Attitude Toward Material Things, or the Stewardship of Wealth."

"A superficial reading of the gospels might lead one to think that Jesus placed values on poverty, and that he considered wealth as a menace," said Rev. Whitman. "There are those who, as they study the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, conclude that Lazarus was rewarded because he was poor in material goods, and that the rich man was condemned because he was rich, but such was not the interpretation of Jesus."

"Lazarus received his reward out of his spiritual life of living; his poverty was the result of circumstances. Circumstances gave the rich man accumulations in material things. In the sight of the great teacher, as all men are, he was rewarded in the measure of his spiritual failures. Thus, Jesus did not teach that life consists of material values, but that Christian character, a flowering out into moral and spiritual fruitage, is the measure of man's living."

Christ's Attitude.

The speaker said that as one studies the gospels of Jesus, one notes its encouragement of industry, the obtaining of material goods, if goods be the means and the agencies for the development of his program in the world. In his parable of the sower, He emphasizes the value of industry; so also in the parable of the talents. "Jesus did not deny wealth, but He emphasized the place of wealth in the moral and spiritual development. To be sure, wealth selfishly used, becomes a curse, but wealth consecrated to the service of humanity becomes a blessing. This is the interpretation of Jesus in all that he said and did, as he came in contact with the rich and the poor."

Seek to Serve.

"The ideals of Jesus and the Christian ideal of this new day brings us to the enlarged and unselfish view of service of material things. The Christian program of today strives to create wealth only that it may be used for the welfare of humanity and the enthronement of Christ's kingdom. Today, men of wealth are catching the broader Christ-like view of stewardship and are using their material success unselfishly, that humanity may be made happy and serviceable."

"The new day finds men in every walk of life striving to do unselfish service, to properly use their stewardship to glorify the teachings of Jesus, and to enshrine him in the heart of humanity."

Win Favor

Because they were unable to make train connections the Clifton Mallory Players were not able to put on their afternoon program at the chautauqua Monday, but when they did appear in the evening performance, they won popular favor through their dramatic work. Their presentation of "Money," a comedy, was all and, if possible, more than was expected by the large audience that assembled to greet them.

The play is a good comedy working out of the desire of the secretary of a rich man for his daughter and his scheming to get the assistance of the father unknowingly. This he manages to do and "the old fool of a father" presents a ludicrous picture when he discovers his own folly.

The Clifton Mallory Players have begun to feel somewhat at home in

ONCE HUNTED BANDIT NOW PLAYS HOST TO AMERICANS ON HIS MEXICAN RANCH

The mild looking chap in the center of the photo above is the once feared Villa, who spread terror through Mexico and brought about the punitive expedition of U. S. troops into Mexico. He is now living a peaceful life on a 225,000-acre farm, Canutillo, in the Durango mountain district. The ranch was given to him by the Mexican government in return for his good behavior. He was snapped recently while proudly exhibiting the ranch to T. M. Harwood, an American engineer.

Richmond for this is not the first nor the second time they have been here at this time of year. They have been responsible for many enjoyable evenings for large numbers of our local residents and are welcomed by children and grown-ups alike. They will present "Vanity" Tuesday night.

Italian Songs Given

A program of Italian songs was the feature of the performance of the Visocchi Trio Monday night when they appeared for the second time. The work of Andrew Visocchi, accordion wizard, was of exceptional entertainment value to the children. His solo work won high favor and he was recalled again and again. His line of banter and monologue conversation with the audience made him a favorite.

The work of Miss Gladys Andes, soprano and reader, and Miss Inez Chambers, violinist, was in high favor before their program terminated Tuesday night.

Miss Andes presented some readings of her own composition at the evening performance and also sang and accompanied on the piano.

Miss Chambers is an artist on the violin and won her audience upon her first appearance. She was accorded the approval of the massive prelude crowd at the big tent Monday night through her rendition of Mozart's "Minuet" and "The Hungarian Dance" by Brahms. The Visocchi Trio will appear on the program Tuesday evening.

Haridas Muzumdar, of Bombay, India, who is in attendance at the Friday general conference, outlined in detail the efforts of the people of India to throw off the yoke of British imperialism. He said the people of India were not going to revolt to destroy people, but to destroy imperialism.

The speaker scored the indifference of the American public to the affairs in the British empire and the world generally, asserting that Americans had not been sufficiently informed of conditions and were too sufficient unable winners at Shelbyville, where they are now showing; Dorset Horned sheep owners who include Lindley Baker and Clark Fancett of the same neighborhood; Percheron horse owners of Boston, Hagerstown, Fountain City and Ohio communities, give some indication of the variety and the extent of territory covered by exhibitors.

In the horse show especially, besides the draft animal class shown at Jackson park last year, an especially strong interest has been shown in exhibits of saddle horses and roadsters. Abiram Boyd of Pershing being one of the prominent horse owners outside of Richmond who has shown an intention of attending. His string, if shown, will prove a strong attraction, as by that time they probably will be wearers of ribbons won at Indianapolis.

Seek Space

Although headquarters have not yet been opened, Mayor Handley and other members of the committee are already in receipt of several applications for space by prospective stock exhibitors. A special display of their fruit is promised by the Martin and Wesler farm near New Paris, who have requested a space 10 feet square for their exhibit.

Charles Hodge, who will act as secretary of the fair, will receive entries for the show in headquarters which will be opened Thursday morning in the former Hirsch store at 15 North Ninth street. Additional premium lists and entry blanks were sent out to all townships Tuesday.

EAGLES TO CONDUCT PICNIC ON SEPT. 10

At least 2,000 persons are expected to attend a picnic in Bealview park under auspices of the Eagles' lodge, Sept. 10. Games, music and refreshments will make up the entertainment.

Plans were set under way at a meeting of the amusement committee Monday evening. The committee is made up of Herbert Weisbrod, chairman, Frank Kahle, John Holmes, Bob Flanagan, and Frank Densman.

Sub committees will be appointed to take charge of various features later. George Brehm, Sam Vignar and Joseph Waltermann have been named to take charge of games.

Some Features

Horseshoe pitching, a treasure hunt for children, a fat man's race, a 50 yard dash for boys under 15, a fat women's race, a 50 yard dash for girls under 15, a melon eating contest; open to both boys and girls, a tug of war for boys under 12, an egg race for the women, and a sack race are among the events. Prizes will be given in all events.

Ice cream, pop, cracker jack, candy, lemonade, cigars, and dancing will be free to those in attendance, according to plans.

Must Show Receipts

Emphasis was laid in the announcement on the fact that all membership receipts must be shown at the gate. If a man who is a member sends his family, his receipt must be shown by some member of the family, it was stated.

Invitations have been sent to the lodges at Anderson, Newcastle, Connersville and Muncie to attend the affair. An orchestra will furnish music. Members of the order are requested to bring their picnic baskets and stay all day.

Many Diphtheria Cases Reported in Indianapolis

(By United Press)
INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 29.—Dr. Herman G. Morgan, secretary of the Indianapolis board of health, said today that 27 cases of diphtheria have been discovered here.

"The department is holding conferences with school nurses and sanitary officers for instructions in preventive measures," Dr. Morgan said. "The cool dry weather of this time of year is especially conducive to diphtheria, as it acts on the mucus membranes of the nose and throat in a way as to aid the growth of bacilli."

to recede from its determination to make any more concessions.

Meanwhile the series of conferences held by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and by Mr. Warriner and other operators, has been continuing. United States Senator Pepper, Secretary of Labor Davis, Mayor John Durkin, of Scranton, and others have conferred with the labor leader in the last few days. He has consistently declined to comment on the situation.

The Rev. J. J. Curran of Wilkesbarre, veteran priest and friend of President Roosevelt, who was active in seeking peace in the 1902 strike, was among Mr. Lewis' callers yesterday. Later Father Curran visited Mr. Warriner, after which he issued a statement in which he said that he believed the mine workers, who are opposed to a permanent board of arbitration would be willing to agree to the creation of a "fact finding commission" to report its findings at a conference of operators and miners, the information to be available in negotiating a new wage agreement.

TRIAL OF 80 STRIKING MINERS SET ON SEPT. 5

BRAZIL, Ind., Aug. 29.—The trial of 80 coal miners of Clay, Vigo and Vermillion counties charged with riot and conspiracy as a result of their raid on the wagon mines west of the city during the strike, have been set down for trial here next Tuesday, Sept. 5. A special venire of 25 talesmen has been issued.

The accused men are charged with being part of an army of 500 strikers who moved on wagon mines around Staunton last June 14 and forced them to close.

At the Jones Brothers mine, the strikers encountered the owners and employees armed with shotguns. All except one surrendered and his gun was taken from him and he was beaten. The strikers poured all the carbide out on the ground at another mine and set fire to it and at another place they poured all the oil in the fire under the boilers and destroyed other property.

A special grand jury indicted the 80 men whose names were obtained by victims of the terrorism campaign. The defendants were released under $1,000 bond each. The group from Terre Haute was accompanied by several strikers who threatened to storm the court house.
